

Avista Requests to Lower Natural Gas Rates for Washington Customers

09/13/12

Sep 13, 2012 (Marketwire via COMTEX) -- Natural gas customers in Washington could see their rates decrease by an additional overall 4.4 percent this fall if the request Avista made today is approved by the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission (UTC). Customers previously received an overall 6.4 percent decrease in natural gas rates on March 1 of this year.

If today's request is approved, a residential customer in Washington using an average of 68 therms per month would see a decrease of $2.58, or 4.3 percent, for a revised monthly bill of $58.18. Washington commercial customers could expect decreases of 5.1 percent for large general service schedule 111, 5.7 percent for extra large general service schedule 121 and 8.0 percent for interruptible sales service schedule 131. The new rates for Avista's approximately 149,000 natural gas customers in Washington could be effective Nov. 1.

The request is a Purchased Gas Cost Adjustment (PGA) which is typically filed annually in the fall to balance the cost of wholesale natural gas purchased by Avista to serve customers with the amount already included in customer rates. Given the continuing decline in wholesale natural gas prices, Avista proposed to decrease the natural gas rates customers pay to better reflect current market prices for natural gas.

"Heading into this heating season, residential natural gas customers in Washington could have rates that are 11.4 percent, or $7.49, per month lower than those in effect at the beginning of this year, which is good news," said Dennis Vermillion, president of Avista Utilities.

The combined costs of purchasing natural gas on the wholesale market and transporting it to Avista's system makes up about 55 percent of an Avista natural gas customer's bill, and these costs fluctuate up and down based on market prices. These costs are passed through to customers in Avista's PGA filings without mark up. Because the amount customers pay for natural gas is the same amount Avista paid to purchase the gas, there is no impact on company earnings with PGA adjustments. The remaining 45 percent of a customer's natural gas bill covers the cost of delivering the natural gas -- the equipment and people needed to provide safe and reliable service.
